

Frank Fata
Family

Larry, Barb Fata & family

Shortly after Sheri's high school graduation we made a family trip to Italy. Not able to speak the language we hit the highlights of Rome and headed to the Amalfi coast and Sorrento. This was an exceptionally memorable trip.

When I was thirteen years old I was fortunate enough to have the opportunity of going to Europe with my Grandma and Grandpa along with Joanne. It was a once in a lifetime trip and a wonderful experience. We sailed to Italy on the oceanliner Michelangelo. The travel itself was great fun. We had a great time and the food was excellent!

Grandpa bought a car (which he later shipped home) and we drove everywhere! While most of the trip was spent in Italy we also spent some time in France and Switzerland. Even then I remember Grandma hovering over Grandpa, watching over him. She was always after him for something! I think Grandma's main goal in life was taking care of her Paul.

We saw everything Italy had to offer. From Rome to Venice to St. Ippolito and Cosenza, we hit everything! I will always remember how beautiful everything was. Even though I was only thirteen years old I was able to realize what a wonderful experience I was having. The churches were beautiful and the art was amazing! I'll never forget the feeling of awe I had as we walked into St. Peter's Basilica at the Vatican. It truly took my breath away!

Going south to Cosenza and St. Ippolito was fun and very interesting. I was able to see where my dad grew up and visit my relatives there. Though I spoke no Italian I did spend several days with them and it didn't seem to matter. We communicated fine. It was so fun!

As I grew older, I came to appreciate how lucky I was to have such a wonderful experience with my grandparents. Seeing Europe was great, but spending so much time with Grandma and Grandpa and Joanne of course, was truly a once in a lifetime experience that I still treasure to this day!
